The 2026 midterm elections are coming up, and soon you'll have the chance to vote!

First up is the Alaska primary election on Tuesday, August 18,2026, when AK voters help decide which candidates will represent each political party on the general election ballot in November. Then the nationwide general election will take place on Tuesday, November 3. Across the country, voters like you and me will choose their representatives in Congress, as well as many state and local offices.

We're sharing this information because we want to make sure you feel ready for this year's midterm elections. "Midterm" elections are held in between presidential elections. These elections can shift control of one or both chambers of Congress and influence national priorities on issues like cost of living, the environment, immigration, and more. Your representatives in Congress will make decisions that affect you and everyone else in the country, including which laws get passed and what kinds of programs get funding. In this year's elections, you'll also have the chance to vote for other important offices, like the governor of Alaska.

Your voice helps decide who represents you and your community on the issues that matter to you. Casting your ballot is not just a fundamental right, but a powerful & peaceful way to make your concerns heard, hold leaders accountable, and help shape the direction of your community and country. Elections in Alaska often hinge on just a few votes! The votes of you & your friends could be the deciding factor in many local elections!
